Kids Who Use E-Cigarettes More Likely to Use Tobacco Products in the Future

Partnership to End Addiction
August 2021

Children who use e-cigarettes are up to three times more likely to use tobacco products in the future, according to a new report by the World Health Organization (WHO).

“Nicotine is highly addictive. Electronic nicotine delivery systems are harmful, and must be better regulated,” Dr. Tedros Adhanom Ghebreyesus, WHO Director-General, said in a statement.

“Where they are not banned, governments should adopt appropriate policies to protect their populations from the harms of electronic nicotine delivery systems, and to prevent their uptake by children, adolescents and other vulnerable groups.”

The report states that 84 countries lack safeguards to protect against unregulated proliferation of e-cigarettes. Thirty-two countries have completely banned the sale of e-cigarettes, and an additional 79 have implemented measures to limit their sale in public places, ban advertising or require that they display health warnings.

More than four times as many people are covered under WHO-recommended tobacco control measures today compared with 2007, according to The Hill.

Opioid Committee Report

Connie Terry
Program Assistant
Opioid Committee
September 2021

National Recovery Month

Opioid addiction is a chronic disease that causes long-lasting changes in the brain. Opioids bind with pain receptors in the brain causing large amounts of dopamine to be released. This makes the user want to repeat the experience. (1) As complex as it is, opioid addiction can be treated and managed. Recovery is possible.

Recovery is a long-term process and it's important to be patient. It's also important to have support from family members, friends, and communities. Regaining one's health and living a productive life is the end goal of all treatment programs. September 2021 is National Recovery Month. It's a time to celebrate recovery. It recognizes the gains made by those in recovery and reinforces the lives transformed. Recovery Month celebrates accomplishments. No one is alone in the journey to wellness. Everyone's journey is different, but we are all in it together. (2)

This year's theme for National Recovery Month is “Recovery is for Everyone: Every Person, Every Family, Every Community Opens a New Window.” Show your support for members of your community in recovery by posting a purple ribbon in your window, webpage, on your desk or on your door.

Schizophrenia Cases Linked to Cannabis Use Disorder Have Increased

Partnership to End Addiction
August 2021

A new study suggests the proportion of cases of schizophrenia associated with cannabis use disorder has increased three- to four-fold during the past two decades.

Researchers in Denmark found 2% of schizophrenia diagnoses in that country were linked with cannabis use disorder. By 2000, the rate had risen to 4%. Since 2010, the figure rose to 8%, CNN reports.

“I think it is highly important to use both our study and other studies to highlight and emphasize that cannabis use is not harmless,” said study co-author Carsten Hjorthøj. “There is, unfortunately, evidence to suggest that cannabis is increasingly seen as a somewhat harmless substance. This is unfortunate, since we see links with schizophrenia, poorer cognitive function, substance use disorders, etc.”

In an editorial accompanying the study, Tyler J. VanderWeele of the Harvard T. H. Chan School of Public Health, said that the study’s estimates could be low because cannabis use disorder is underdiagnosed.

“Cannabis use disorder is not responsible for most schizophrenia cases, but it is responsible for a non-negligible and increasing proportion. This should be considered in discussions regarding legalization and regulation of the use of cannabis,” VanderWeele wrote.

August 31st - Overdose Awareness Day

Partnership to End Addiction

August 2021

Flags are flown at half-staff to mark a period of mourning and remembrance. It's a recognition of tragedy and brings comfort and honor to those experiencing grief. The federal government has yet to order flags to fly at half-staff to mark one of our nation's greatest tragedies: the ongoing drug overdose crisis, which claimed nearly 841,000 American lives between 1999 and 2019.^[1] This year, it is more important than ever to recognize the overdose crisis as a national tragedy and honor the lives of those lost. It is expected that we will have the highest number of overdose deaths ever recorded for a single year.^[2]

Overdose Awareness Day is observed on August 31 to remember these lives lost to overdoses. In light of the rising overdose deaths taking place across the country, several members of Congress introduced a resolution to encourage Federal buildings to lower their flags to half-staff in support of Overdose Awareness Day.
